

Little Quoin Farmhouse

COAL RIVER VALLEY - TASMANIA

FREE RANGE BERKSHIRE PORK

"Little Quoin Farmhouse is a small family hobby farm, specialising in heirloom food and breeders of Free-Range, Pure Registered Berkshire Pigs. Our focus is on producing our own food and making our surplus available to the general public. We want our children to grow up knowing where their food comes from and at the same time, trying to preserve our heritage varieties of fruit, vegetables and animals. We want people to experience what food used to be, before the demand of supermarket-bred hybrids took over our lives, and to appreciate the beauty of their flavour. That's our mission!

Berkshire Pigs are a rare heritage breed that originated from Berkshire, England 300 years ago. They are well suited to free-range and have truly remarkable meat qualities. Our pigs are completely free-range, having constant access to paddocks their entire lives, as well as sun, shade, mud and warm insulated shelters. We feed them a special diet of a Tasmanian made grain feed and seasonal fruit and vegetables, which is why our pork tastes so fantastic and uniquely true-to-breed."
